Review

Movie: How To Train Your Dragon

Most people have pests like mosquitos, moths, and cockroaches, but in Berk, they have dragons. The Vikings there spend most of their time fighting dragons, building weapons to kill dragons, stop the dragons from eating the sheep... that is, until young Hiccup, the Chief's only son, shoots down a Night Fury. Surprises arise, friends-and enemies-are made, and the world may just change. HTTYD 2 and HTTYD: The Hidden World are also very good. Recommended for 7+.

The Daily Interview

Kelly James

Most of us have been outside of Austin at least once, but probably none of us have as many places as Kelly James. "I travel for two reasons," says Kelly. "I travel for my job quite a bit, and then I also travel for fun sometimes when I'm not working." The coolest country she's been to is New Zealand, because "you can climb a mountain and go to the beach, all in the spanse of an hour." Her favorite place she's been is Capri, a small island off Italy. "The place I like is called Blue Grotto, it's a cave, and when you go inside in a boat the cave glows blue. And when you go in with a tour guide, they start singing, and since it's a cave, it echos. It's crazy." Click here for a slideshow with all of Kelly's favorite places with pictures, and a picture of Blue Grotto. Kelly has lived in a lot of places, too: Austin, Texas; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Dunedin, New Zealand; Boston, Massachusetts; Akland, New Zealand; Miami, Florida; Houston, Texas; Dayton, Ohio; and San Francisco, California: An impressive list! "I think everyone should travel as much as they can," says Kelly. "It's a great way to learn new languages, which I think is the most important skill you can learn."

DAD JOKE OF THE DAY

What do you call a three-humped camel?

Pregnant.
